

Feeding Range Cattle

Product Selection Guide

- Creep feeds can be limit-fed in creep feeders for young calves during or prior to weaning.
- Receiving pellets serve as a high-quality ration balancer for calves entering the feedlot.
- Developer feeds are packed full of nutritional technology for growing bull and heifer calves.

- Cattleman's Advantage is a popular texturized blend of grains for growing calves.
 - * Delivers the additional calories that heifers need to reach the onset of puberty.
 - * Excellent choice for putting bloom on bulls prior to show, sell, or breeding time.

- Cake is the most popular way to provide protein and energy to cattle during the winter months.
 - * Ideal for the rancher who enjoys feeding, inspecting, or gathering the herd daily.
 - * The least cost way to deliver comprehensive nutrition in extensive operations.

- Ranch-O-Blocks (ROB) are a free-choice protein and energy supplement for cattle on range.
 - * Disperse throughout the pasture or corn stalk fields to encourage cattle to utilize more acres.
 - * Delivers the same nutrition as tubs, but at HALF THE PRICE!

- Ranch-O-Lyx (ROL) Tubs are a convenient, free-choice protein and energy supplement for cattle.
 - * Set them out, you are done! Intake is reliable and consistent.
 - * Tubs provide supplemental protein, vitamins and minerals in every lick.

- Ranch-O-Min (ROM) Minerals address the deficiencies common in the Rocky Mountain region.
 - * Switch to season-specific formulas as forage composition changes throughout the year.
 - * Choose mineral blocks if you've experienced high mineral loss due to wind and rain damage or if your cattle have over-consumed the loose mineral.
 - * See mineral flyer for detailed information on available house mineral formulas.
